Opposition No. 91167207
Ms. Anita Dhaliwal
v.
DVD World Pictures Corp.

To whom it may concern:

This letter is in response to the letter sent out on 11/13/2007 concerning our lack of appearance or response concerning the Opposition of our trademark in Opposition No. 91167207. Our lack of appearance and response has been due to the fact that Ms. Dhaliwal and her legal team have gone out of their way to make sure that this case was dragged out as long as possible and for as high of a legal fee on our side as possible, which caused us to have to drop our counsel. Due to the costs involved in the case up to this point we can no longer have legal representation on this matter nor do we have the legal knowledge to represent the case ourselves. We would ask that a summary judgment is made with the information that we present right here and that is already on file with the USPTO since we cannot continue with legal counsel, yet have a right to have the DVD World trademark that was filed be registered. Those reasons are stated below:

1. We already have a registered trademark of the DVD World (Registration # 2912970).
2. The Registered DVD World trademark was submitted to the USPTO on 8/18/2003, Published For Opposition on 9/28/2004 and Registered on 12/21/2004.
3. The pending DVD World trademark was submitted on 10/6/2004.
4. Both the Registered & Pending DVD World marks were submitted before Ms. Dhaliwal purchased the DVDWorld.Com domain name at on an online auction site in December of 2004.
5. Because both marks were submitted, and the registered mark was already published for opposition, well before the December 2004 domain purchase date Ms. Dhaliwal could very easily have seen that her purchase of the name would be infringing on a soon to be registered trademark and was valuable to her only because of the use of our soon to be registered trademark in the domain name DVDWorld.Com. She purchased the name anyway.
6. Ms. Dhaliwal is now selling DVD's on the DVDWorld.Com site using our registered name of DVD World which goes against our currently registered trademark of DVD World and our stated use of the mark which is "Online Retailing Of DVDs".
7. We own over 100 domain names that have the DVD World mark in them. Ms. Dhaliwal only has 1.
8. We have been using the DVD World mark since 1997. Ms. Dhaliwal has never even used the mark.

Since Ms. Dhaliwal clearly had the opportunity to see that the DVD World mark was already in the process of being registered when she purchased the domain name of DVDWorld.Com and that she is now selling DVD products under that registered name on the DVDWorld.Com site it is clear that she is solely out to use our registered name for her own gain, which is trademark infringement and shows that her opposition to our second DVD World mark should not be given any attention. A summary judgment should be made in our favor since we are already the owner of 1 DVD World registered mark and are the only party that will be hurt financially by a decision of the USPTO that does not go in our favor concerning the registration of this mark.

We hope that you see that this case needs to be settled in our favor and will do so accordingly.

Sincerely,
